

Firecracker Jax: Hel Bound (Book 6)

To right Jax's wrongs, the dark angels kidnap Calista and take her to Afterlife, where she is to wait with her dead, identical twin sister until she dies of natural causes. To rescue her, Jax impulsively heads to Afterlife, a place where no human has returned from. Hel's evil is coming to a head, and the time is right to implement her revenge against the gods of the Aesir. With Congelo dead, Hel comes up with an ingenious plan to trick Chaos into helping her. Amid Hel's plotting, the end of the world started one night. Hundreds of the newly-made Undefeatable ships arrived and moved over the planet. Now it's just a matter of time before mankind goes extinct. Humans had fought bravely in the war and had managed to take down half of the old warships; they had actually begun to believe victory was possible, but that was before the arrival of so many Undefeatables. Through all of this, Jax is determined to keep the Vessel out of the hands of the Gremlads. He wants to save Earth, but there are millions of worlds in the universe to save as well. And the Vessel in the Gremlads' hands will doom all of them. For the first time in his life, Jax's wits and con jobs can't fix the situation. A miracle is needed, but there's a problem: Jax doesn't believe in miracles. Ages 13 and up AUTHORS NOTE: The six books in the Firecracker Jax series should be read in numerical order. Each is built on the foundation of the previous book(s) and, in turn, is a stepping stone for the next.
