At first, it was only research ...Author Michael Schiftmann has received resounding critical acclaim for his novels that few people buy or read. The sad truth is that readers aren't interested in great literature they only want glitz and violence. So that's what Michael intends to give them shocking stories of a blood-chillingly efficient serial killer that are filled with gore and horror. And to ensure that his books are impeccably realistic in every aspect, he plans to try his own hand ... at murder. Soon his fictional killer is a sensation, and Michael is a rich, sought-after celebrity and his beautiful, rising-star literary agent, Taylor Robinson, is falling in love with him. But there is one serious problem: Michael Schiftmann has discovered that bloodletting feels good ... and he can't seem to stop.

The lists were written on torn pieces of clothing and penned in blood, then sewn into the collar and cuffs of his shirt. It was his duty, he says, The cloth has the names of fellow-detainees written in blood and rust. Photograph by Miriam Lomaskin / U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum.
